

Crow Dark Dawn

October 2023

By David Greygoose

ISBN: 978-1-7393239-2-9

RRP: £8.99

Genre: Poetic Fiction

step into a world of fantasy and imagination... be transported to another world, another realm...

DANA GILLESPIE

beautiful stories and such evocative writing.

PAUL MOLLOY: The Coral

The stories glow with colours that dapple from bright sunlight to the dust of an Impressionist's dream.

ICARUS PEEL: The Honey Pot

In a city of wind-swept wharfs and winding alleyways, the haunting memory of a far-off village lingers in the words of an ancient fable.

Crow Dark Dawn interweaves the stories of Morrow, Ghresselle, Fenya and Binnory: vulnerable, complex and cunning, surviving in a liminal city of wind-swept wharfs and winding alleyways, stagnant canals and cold dank cellars, drawing on folklore and myth to create a distinctive dream-like atmosphere.

The Author

DAVID WARD was born in Northampton. He is co-founder of The Windows Project, running creative writing workshops in community venues on Merseyside since 1976; and editor of Smoke magazine. He has toured to Singapore, Hong Kong and Harbin (Northern China) and broadcast on BBC TV and radio. Poems in over 200 magazines and anthologies, including Poetry Review, Abridged, Ambit and Poetry Wales. Collections Tracts and On the Edge of Rain (Headland). Jambo (Riot Stories Ltd and Impact) Inside Pale Eyes (Hawkwood) Visiting Writer-in-Residence Nanyang University, Singapore. Honorary Fellow in Creative Writing, Liverpool Hope University. Writing as David Greygoose: folkloric tales Brunt Boggart (Hawkwood 2015; Pushkin 2018); Mandrake Petals and Scattered Feathers (Hawkwood 2021).

2006-2024